O. R. LUDEWIG FAVORS KEEPING DISTRICT INTACT

Doing Away with the Water District Would be a Mistake that the Voters of Richmond Could Never Correct.

O. R. Ludewig, former mayor of Richmond and chairman of the board of freeholders which just submitted a new charter to the city, is opposed unalterably to the dissolution of the water district.

He declares that if the voters do away with the water district they will make a mistake they can never correct.

Mr. Ludewig says that the people do not know what the water commission has really accomplished during the past four years. Trey are opposed to this commission through ignorance. They do not realize the harm they would do themselves by disorganizing the district.

He thought the board had been misjudged. It was not true, he said, that the board had done nothing but spend money. He declares that they have taken up 18 water propositions and have had the services costs money. He gives it as his of expert engineers, all of which opinion that the expenditures have brought good results.

"If there is objection to the members of the board don't re-elect them," says Ludewig. "Every one will go out of office March 4. See that good men are chosen. As to the question of expense, that can be reduced to nothing. I would be willing to serve on that board in order to retain the water district. We could meet and organize and then adjourn. In this way there would be no expense, and we could meet only when it was absolutely necessary.

"There have been many times in the last few years when there was not six inches of water in the reservoir. If the city of Richmond had been confronted with a fire of any great proportions nothing could have saved it.

"The People's Water Company is putting in the San Pablo dam improvement, and who will pay for that? Tre consumers, of course. If a man buys a house he pays so much a month, which comes like rent. If the city owns its own water plant the rate that is paid for water pays for the plant in the same way. We will pay twice as much for the present water as for municipal water and never have the plant, while by the other system we will own the plant in 40 years.

"Issuing bonds for the municipal plant does not mean more taxes. There is no taxation about it. The plant is paid for when a man pays for his water each month.

"We should get together on this matter, we citizens of Richmond, and save the water district next Tuesday. We should vote no and see that all who are interested in the welfare of the city also should vote no."

HOW PRESIDENT'S PEACE PLAN STRIKES ALLIES

Don't Take Kindly to Any Proposal That Does Not Contemplate the Subjugation of Germany First.

Naturally readers of the Richmond News who have been following the war news, the peace news and the neutral utterances of the President, will be interested in knowing how his last great epoch-making speech for peace was taken. Briefly, the dispatches indicate the following sentiment:

London—"Victory for the allies first, and talk of lasting peace afterwards." That is the sentiment expressed by the Pall Mall Gazette.

The general trend of editorial utterances was that there could be no "peace without victory," as Wilson hoped for.

Paris—The Journal says there is no possible chance to bring "this magnificent Wilson Utopia nearer except by trying to conquer."

The Matin says it "is mere delusion to think that persuasion can be effective."

Washington—President Wilson hopes the nation will back his plea and he puts his trust in "the friends of humanity" as to whether peace in Europe will be brought about.

He anticipates objections, but he believes that after the message has had time to seep into the minds of the warring governments it will appeal more and more strongly.

IT HAS A PAPA AND A WET NURSE

What is the Taxpayers' Association?

It is a tiny infant with about three members.

Has it anything else?

Oh, yes, children, it has something else.

What else has it?

It has a Papa and a Wetnurse.

Who is its Papa?

Mr. Levi Boswell.

Who is its Wetnurse?

The People's Water Corporation.

Is that all it has?

Yes, that's all, except a sack of boodle out of which it pays ten cents per name for signers to petitions to disrupt the people's own water district.

ENTERTAINED MIND-READERS.

When Mr. and Mrs. James M. Jones of 448 Seventh street attended the Richmind theater the other night they were greatly surprised to observe that the Nellars, mind-readers, were old friends. After the performance they called upon them at their apartments, where old times were renewed, and on Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Nellar were entertained by Mr. Jones and wife at their home. The Nellars are old Richmondites, having resided here some eight years ago.

They were much surprised to see the progress Richmond had made in business buildings, schools, street improvements and in many other ways.

UNIFORM ACCOUNTING SYSTEM.

The Grand Jury recommends a uniform system of accounting in county offices, and has adopted recommendations that the same system employed by the State Board of Control be adopted.

EVER TRY RAVIOLAS?

Making raviolas is an art, and it takes the Italians to do it right. There is nothing more delicious than raviolas properly made. Drop into the Raviola Cafe at 1325 Macdonald avenue, between 13th nd 14th, and try a portion, or ring up Richmond 1186 and have some delivered at your home, ready to eat. You couldn't get a better dinner. This establishment will open a department in the new free market about the 3rd of February, and will have on hand raviolas, tamales and cookies, with Italian sauce always ready.

"STOP OUR ADV.: CAN'T FILL ORDERS"

That advertising in the Daily News is a paying investment is indicated by the following letter received today from the Lorraine Chemical Laboratories, Los Angeles:

Richmond News, Richmond, Cal. —Gentlemen: Kindly discontinue our advertisement until further notice. We have more orders than we can take care of. Yours truly,

As the News was the only paper in which the company was advertising in this territory, the point is obvious.

K. OF P. ANNIVERSARY.

The Knights of Pythias celebrated their 54th anniversary last night at Pythian Castle. It was also the 40th anniversary of the insurance department. A fine spread was provided, and many fint talks made on the order and its work. The committee: J. A. Gregory, C. B. Desmond and H. P. Scott. They furnished an entertainment of a superior order.

Miss Annette Gayette, dept. pres. of Berkeley, Mrs. Gushman, dept. councilor, and Mrs. Hoyt of the National Dept., met yesterday with Richmond Circle, Ladies of the G. A. R. This meeting was a very enthusiastic one and promises good progress during the coming year to the local circle.

REWARD

The Daily News will pay a reward of $5 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone stealing this paper from subscribers.

We concede the right of the Evening Independent to be on the side of the water corporation as against the people, if it thinks that way about it, and we concede the same right to every individual, but we do not concede the right of any newspaper or individual to make false or misleading statements. Honesty is the best policy, even in politics, and nothing else ever pays or wins out in the long run.

The News asked two months ago that a clear-cut, straight, honest campaign be adhered to in this water matter, and that each side stick to the truth and win on its merits.

So far this paper has not knowingly misrepresented any fact, and will not, but the corporation side does so continually, and they will gain nothing by such a policy, for the people cannot be fooled only just about so long, and then that sort of thing reacts and comes back upon the party misrepresenting, and generally knocks him silly.

The statement in our sundown contemporary with a watery brain that the large factories of Richmond were in favor of a disruption of our municipal water district, is not true. Such an assertion is a gross distortion of the facts.

The large factory interests of Richmond are not in favor of any such thing, and a canvass among the leading men of the industrial plants will show this to be true.

The editor of the News has made such a canvass, partially, and made it in San Francisco, at the head offices, among the higher ups, who have authority to speak, and almost without exception these men have said that it seemed to them like the disruption of the local water district would be a step backward.

One of the heads of our greatest industry here said that while he had not studied out the details of the Marin project, it seemed to be a very fine proposition, provided that the laying of the pipes under the bay was feasible, and that he saw nothing else against it. Since then it has been shown to him that that objection was the least of all, and that similar projects had been successfully carried out in many instances, and so, to the best of our knowledge and belief at this writing, he is heartily in favor of the project.

We have not interviewed the local superintendents, but are venturing the guess that the new roofing factory, for instance, would have been very glad to have escaped the necessity of building that monster steel tank high up in the air, at thousands of dollars expense, which was made necessary for no other reason than that the present water supply in Richmond has no pressure whatever for fire protection.

Another juggling of facts we wish to call the voters' attention to, is the assertion that while the big taxpayers are in favor of school bonds, and the like, they object to water bonds on the ground that taxation is already high enough.

Now, no man of affairs in this city ever said any such thing to the Independent, or to anybody else, for the simple reason that such an assertion displays ignorance, and our factory heads are not ignorant, by a long way.

Any school boy knows, or ought to know, that there will be no additional taxation because of water bonds, and cannot be, for the very simple reason that the water consumers pay everything and no direct taxation, save the use of water by each can be had, or ever is had.

And that phase of the case is as plain as A B C. We are all paying the price now, and a bigger price than we will be called upon to pay to ourselves under municipal ownership. The only difference is that now we are paying it to a wealthy corporation, and under the municipal ownership plan we will be paying it to ourselves, and only paying about half as much per month each.

The money rereived from the sale of water to the consumers pays the expense, pays the interest, creates a sinking fund with which to ultimatly retire the bonds, and nobody is taxed anything whatever. And during all that time you will be paying a minimum of about 75 cents a month instead of $1.50, as we are now.

And that is all there is to it. It is plain and simple. And anybody who knows this editor knows by this time that he would not willingly misrepresent any proposition, and that no monied consideration or ulterior motive ever actuates him in his plain statements of facts to the common, every-day people, whether the issue be water, whisky, politics, religion, wet, dry, heaven or hell. And any of you who do not know that have another think coming.

So, as we started out to say, let us have honesty and fairness, and whichever side wins or loses, let it be done on real facts and merit.

The proposition made to the warring nations, outlined to the Senate by President Wilson, and contained in the news dispatches of this paper yesterday morning, is certainly a grand good thing. It is a masterful effort, and, as Senator Tillman said, the proposition is the grandest and greatest thing since the Declaration of Independence. And it certainly is. The proposal to the struggling, wrecked nations across the seas that they adopt the doctrine of President Monroe, is startling, unique, original, just, proper and nothing short of a grand idea of a grand man. President Woodrow Wilson is the greatest man ever in the White House since Abraham Lincoln.

Looks like Brer. Galvin was "The Man Behind the Woe."

When a man and woman are tired of each other it takes something stronger than Ladies' Home Journal advice to cement the puncture.

A horse will live twenty-five days without solid food, merely drinking water; seventeen days without either eating or drinking; and only five days when partaking of solid food without water.

AN APPRECIATION THE THINKOGRAPH

By Maybelle Caraway.

Long may it live, and far may its influence reach, spreading its gospel of sunshine into the corners of the earth. What a fine antidote for the sensational yellow journal The Thinkograph is full of surprises of the wholesome type, like we used to find way down in the toe of our stockings in the dear old days when Santa Claus, fat and jolly, with jingly bells, came down the chimney. Didn't we actually see soot on the hearth when we peeped at the bulging stockings before jumping out of bed and making the grand rush on Christmas morning.

One may smile at some epigram which catches the eye as he begins reading this orignal lititle magazine. The smile broadens into a hearty laugh, and before it is finished, he sits up straight and blinks as he reads something that opens up a line of deep thought. And he wonders what manner of man the author is, for he is leading into some vital truths. He is a good philosopher and is showing us some real thought nuggets. The Thinkograph is well named, and may it succeed in its beautiful mission of making us think more good and less evil of our fellow man. You have a large field and a great work before you, little "Thinko," and your readers know you are equal to it.

The Daredevil

By Maria Thompson Daviess

Copyright, 1916, by the Reilly & Britton Co.

"Ah, that was so extraordinary coming from a woman that you must pardon me for listening and making exclamation," came an answer in a nice voice near at my elbow. The words were spoken in as perfect English as

"I know why it is that you go to America!"

I had learned from my father, but in them I observed to be an intonation that my French ear detected as Parisian. "Also, mademoiselle, are you young women of the new era to be without that very delightful but often danger creating quality of curiosity?" As I turned I looked with startled eyes into the grave face of a man less than forty years, whose sad eyes were for the moment lighting with a great tenderness which I did not understand.

"I believe the quality which will be most required of the women of the era which is mine is—is courage and then more courage, monsieur," I made answer to him as if I had been discussing some question with him in my father's smoking room at the Chateau de Grez, as I often came in to do with my father and his friends after the death of my mother when the evenings seemed too long alone. They had liked that I so came at times, and the old Count de Breaux once had remarked that feminine sympathy was the flux with which men made solid their minds into a unanimous purpose. He had been speaking of that war a few weeks after Louvaine, and I had risen and had stood very tall and very haughty before him and my father.

"The women of France are to come after this carnage to mold a nation from what remains to them, monsieur," I had said to him as I looked straight into his face. "Is not the courage of women a war supply upon which to rely?".

"What are the young women—such women as she—going to do in the years that come after the deluge, Henri of America?" he had made a muttering question to my father as his old eyes smoldered over me in the firelight.

From the memory of the smoking room at the Chateau de Grez my mind suddenly returned to the rail of the ship and the Frenchman beside me, who was looking into my face with the same kindly question as to my future that had been in the eyes of my old godfather and which had stirred my father's heart to its American depths and made him send me back to his own country.

"Ah, yes, that courage is a good weapon with which to adventure in this America of the grizzled bear, mademoiselle," I found the strange man saying to me, with a nice amusement as well as interest.

"My father had shot seven grizzlies before his twenty-first birthday. We have the skins, four of them, in the great hall of the Chatean de Grez—or—or we did have them before—before"— My voice faltered, and I could not continue speaking for the tears that rose in my throat and eyes.

Quickly the man at my side turned his broad shoulders that he should shield me from the laughing and exclaiming groups of people upon the deck near us.

"Before Ypres, mademoiselle?" he asked, with tears also in the depths of his voice.

"Yes," I answered. "And I am now going into the great America with my crippled brother and his nurse—alone. It is the land of my father, and I have his courage. I must have also that of a Frenchwoman. I have it, monsieur." And as I spoke I drew myself to my full, round shouldered height, which was almost equal to that of the man beside me.

"Mademoiselle, I salute the courage born of an American who fought before the guns of the Marne and of a Frenchwoman who sent him there!" And as he spoke thus he removed from his head his silk deck cap and held it at his shoulder in a way that I knew was a salute from a French officer to the memory of a brother. "And also may I be permitted to present myself, as it is a sad necessity that you travel without one from whom I might request the introduction?" he asked of me with a beautiful reverence.

After a search in his pocket for a few seconds, he at last discovered a case of leather and presented to me a card. As he handed it to me his color rose up under his black eyes, and grave trouble looked from between their long black lashes. I glanced down at the card and read: "Capitaine le Count Armond de Lasselles, Paris, France Forty-fourth Chasseurs de le Republique Francaise."

"M. le Count, I know—I know why it is that you go to America!" I made exclamation as I clasped to my breast my hands, and my eyes shone with excitement. "I have read it in Le Matin just the day before yesterday. You go to buy grain against the winter of starvation in the republique. No man is so great a financier as you and so brave a soldier, with your wound not healed from the trenches in the Vosges, Monsieur, I salute you!" And I bent my head and held out my hand to him.

"We're to expect nimble wits as well as courage of you young—shall I say American women?" he laughed as he bent over my hand. "Now shall I not be led for introduction to the small brother and the old nurse?" he asked, with much friendly interest in his kind eyes.

KOLB AND DILL AT THE RICHMOND

Kolb and Dill, those funny fellows, who have made all America laugh, will apex the bill at the Richmond T. and D. theater, beginning with tonight. They will be seen in their old conveyance for their comedy, "Lonesome Town," which is by all odds the greatest laugh-producer of all time. Since going into the movies, Kolb and Dill have added greatly to their fame.

Another big feature will be Owen Moore in "Coney Island Princess." With a double bill like that the management would be perfectly justified in raising the admission fee. But it won't be raised. Margaret Courtot will star with Mr. Moore in this production.

It is probable that all night productions of this bill will be overattended, and so the management suggests that those who would be sure of good seats without wait should attend the matinees.

The lure of Coney Island is upon us all. No matter how dignified our demeanor, how ponderous our self-esteem, we are prone to "cut loose" when we arrive at that famous resort and to enter into the spirit of the place with a zest. Coney Island has been invaded by the motion picture producer and made tre background of a large part of the action of "A Coney Island Princess," a Famous Players production, starring Irene Fenwicn, supported by Owen Moore on the Paramount program, which is the attraction at the Richmond theater tonight.

It is an adaptation of the successful play, "The Princess Zim-Zim," by Edward Sheldon, who dramatizsed "The Song of Songs" and suggested Miss Fenwick to the producers as being an ideal "princess" because of her great work in that play on the stage. tI was made by arrangement with Dorothy Donnelly.

COMMUNITY CLUB HAS BIG WATER MEET

The Community Club of the north section of the city held the largest and most enthusiastic meeting of its history last night, for a general educational discussion of the water problem, and more especially relative to the proposed dissolution of the Richmond water district.

There were fully 100 men and women in the assemblage, and the various speakers were listened to with rapt attention and received generous applause.

President Pownell presided. The first speaker was Hon. T. D. Johnston, district attorney. He opened in behalf of the effort of the water corporation to disrupt the district. Mr. Johnston's speech was largely a replica of a similar effort on his part before the Richmond Club recently. We give him credit for doing as well as his side of the controversy would permit, which was not very well, inasmuch as having no argument to present, he very naturally could not present it.

The second speaker was F. J. Hulaniski, editor of the News, who opened the battle on behalf of the people and against the corporation. He appealed to his old friends and neighbors of that section of the city to uphold his efforts for municipal ownership and against the dissolution of the district, and spoke along the lines of his editorial utterances in his paper.

Engineer J. H. Dockweiler made a splendid speech, in which he outlined the whole project, from start to finish, and not only asserted, but proved, that the local board of water commissioners had accomplished all that any similar body could have been expected to accompish, and at less expense than is frequently the case under similar circumstances.

Mr. Dockweiler outlintd tse rejection on the part of the people of the Sacramento river project, and what he and the board had since accomplished in the proposed Marin project, which he explained fully. Mr. Dockweiler is an engineer of national reputation and importance. The city of San Francisco paid him one fee of $65.000 for his opinion on the Hetch-Hetchy project.

Fred Newsome of the Independent made a few pleasant remarks, and asserted that he had found a majority of the business men of Richmond in favor of voting the district out of existence.

City Attorney D. J. Hall briefly outlined the whole matter and showed up some of the fallacies of the arguments on the part of the honorable district attorney, flatly contradicting several of his assertions.

Judge John Roth also made a few remarks germain to the issue and strongly urged the people to assert their own independence now by taking the first step towards getting out from under corporation control.

Editor Galvin was present, but the only talking he did was with a stub pjencil.

Tre ladies of the Community Club served hot coffee and a generous repast, which was much enjoyed by the large audience in attendance.

The News will review these various speeches at length during this week.

CUT WATER BILLS INTO IN THE MIDDLE

January 30th an election will be held in an attempt to disincorporate (destroy) the Richmond Municipal Water District.

This district was created four years ago to obtain a municipal water system providing pure water at a reduced aost.

Expert engineers have given careful consideration to 18 proposed plans. After expending $40,000 in searching out the best features of all available water sources, a wonderful realization of Richmond's hopes is ready to be offered for ratification by the citizens. If the water district is not destroyed on January 30th you will have an opportunity to vote on this question at a later date.

This plan will lower the existing water rates, eventually cutting them in half, will not increase taxes, will cover bond interest and bond redemption and will give Richmond its own water system with unexcelled water.

This is the Marin project.

Go to the polls Tuesday, January 30, and VOTE NO. Make vital that wrich has been done during the past four years. Do not deliver the citizens of Richmond into the power of a private corporation providing inferior water at increasing rates.

If you destroy the Richmond Municipal Water District by failure to vote—or by voting in the affirmative, you lose for the city the power to own its water supply and, you saddle upon the water consumers of the district the $4,000,000 San Pablo development of the People's Water Company. Even this great expenditure will develop only half the supply of the Marin project.

Personal antagonism to the members of the board cannot be urged as a logical reason for abolishing the institution. The term of each member expires in five weeks.

The district can be continued without any cost.

WHY—destroy the wonderful results of Richmond's four years of effort to obtain good water, cheap water and a municipal water system just when the goal is within reach?

WHY—take the fatal step of irrevocably yielding an instrument of protection at the first cry of "Hands Up" from a corporation that will forever increase the cost of poor water?

It is not a question of vindicating the board. Their terms expire March 4. It is desired to arouse you to the danger that is confronting every citizen of Richmond by the efforts of the People's Water corporation in calling an election to remove forever all competition.

Refuse to undo the work of years and on January 30th

VOTE NO.

BLUEBIRD CLUB BENEFIT.

The Bluebird Club, composed of 25 prominent young women of the city, will give a benefit entertainment at the Richmond Club the early part of February. They are organized to spread happiness and good cheer throughout the city. The committee: Mesdames Mary Corcoran, Bessie Detlow, N. Kane, Stella O'Brien and the Misses Marie Kane, Mary Fitzpatrick, Rose Kane and Florence Tavolara.

GIGNOUX TRACTS IMPROVING FAST

Gignoux Brothers of the Richmond Development Company are handling several business and residence tracts. Among them are the Harbor Gate tract near Stege, and nearby is the Harbor Front tract.

Dooling Brothers have done some fine street work in the Harbor Gate tract, putting in paving, gutters and curbing. On the Harbor Front tract S. L. Page and Company are doing a similar class of work. A fortune has been spent in this work. W. L. Raven is the engineer in charge of the work on both tracts. In the past few days a great many lots have been sold in the two tracts.

The fact thath the government has appropriated hundreds of thousands of dollars for harbor work in this vicinity, and the fact that the government is in all probability going to put its naval base near the property, has caused an augmented demand for their holdings.

No Arbitrary Advance

When prices started to soar, I bought large lots of staple goods. My selling prices now are based on the low prices I paid for my stock. Shoes have advanced 50 cents to a dollar a pair. I have not advanced prices 5 cents. I base my prices on what I paid for my stock when prices were low, not on subsequent inflated values.

If you drop in I will prove what I say.
